CAROUSEL CONVEYORS

Carousel conveyors are variously known as “merry-go-round” or “run a-round” conveyors.

They typically have a series of load carrying platforms connected together to form a continuous chain or the platforms can be fixed to a carrying or towing chain.

The platforms follow a fixed path in a continuous loop with or without changing height.

They are widely used assembly lines for handling such things as washing machines, bottles and steel drums.

The load carrying platforms can carry equipment that forms part of the manufacturing process or simply be used to transfer product from one place to another.
